My Dear Wood,

Your favor recd, In reply- I have one of the "Washington D.C." Cut my coins and Medals have been packed away for the past 3 or 4 years- I have not purchased a coin since the Montreal Meet- You will remember that I had trouble with my eyes and had to give up Study and as a natural result my interest ceased just- as soon as I started studying- I have been thinking of getting my coins ready for an Auction but the Expense I had with Law has rather made me somewhat shy- I have sold quite a number of my coins at private sale and find it far more Satisfactory- By the way do you suppose Wilson would care to purchase My Masonic Collection Entire? If you can help me dispose of this Collection I will allow you a Commission of 10% and will sell at what the Collection cost me. Wilmer is the only high degree Mason that has sufficient Money to make such an outlay that I know as the Collection including the plates and jewels cost me nearly Ten Thousand dollars. You will remember I had a few at Columbus Ohio. About the Washington fair I might be able to get it out of the safe without much trouble and if so I had just as soon you had it for your show, also would sell it together with all my holdings.

With the Compliments of the season

I am as ever Most Sincerely yours

B. P. Wright
